

Ideally Positioned

She holds the key.

A SPICY SYDNEY ROMANCE

A Sydney prestige agent gets tackled out of traffic by a gorgeous garbo, and her perfectly staged life goes under the hammer.

Instant attraction. Sharp Australian banter. Explicit consensual heat and a happy ending.

Five stars. Four chillies.

A little shelf appeal.

THE STORY

Evelyn Hartley has a professional smile for every vendor, a diary with no breathing room and a family agency she cannot afford to let down. Tristan Davidson arrives in council shorts, saves her from a very bad morning and refuses to be particularly impressed by any of it.

What starts with a roadside rescue moves beyond flirtation, into private inspections, complicated loyalties and the parts of a life that cannot be styled for sale. Set among Sydney's terraces, harbour views and property theatre, Ideally Positioned is a romance about wanting someone fiercely while learning to keep a life of your own.

ABOUT ELIRA

Elira Hope writes contemporary Australian romance with sharp banter, explicit heat and people who are more interesting than their carefully managed first impressions. In Ideally Positioned, the kitchens are expensive and keeping your composure can be harder than closing a sale.

BOOK CLUBS & DISPLAYS

Try a face-out display in black, blush and hot pink, with a brass-key detail and a small "She holds the key" sign. For a book-club night, pair the novel with The Open House cocktail and the writing playlist. Discussion questions contain whole-book spoilers.
